

Your AI loves every idea. Fix that in one line.

Chatbots are trained to be helpful, so they tend to cheer for whatever you bring them. One line in your settings tells Claude to push back, and it applies to every new chat.

Set it up (1 minute, free on every plan):

1. On claude.ai: Settings → Profile, find the box "What personal preferences should Claude consider in responses?"
2. Paste the one line below (or the longer version) and save. It applies to every new chat.
3. Using ChatGPT? Same idea: Settings → Personalization → Custom instructions.

1 The one line

COPY THIS

Disagree with me when I'm wrong. Give me the honest answer first, even if it's not what I want to hear.

2 The longer version

COPY THIS

Be direct. If my idea has a problem, say so in the first sentence. Give the biggest risk before any praise. If you're not sure, say you're not sure instead of guessing. Don't flatter me.

3 Test any idea

COPY THIS

Rate this idea from 1 to 10. Then give me the 3 biggest reasons it could fail, and what I'd need to see to know it's working.

4 Check a price

COPY THIS

I want to charge [price] for [product]. What do similar sellers near me usually charge? Is my price too high, too low or fair? Be blunt.

5 Argue the other side

COPY THIS

Make the strongest case AGAINST what I just said, as if you were a smart critic. Then tell me which side you think is right.

Claude can still be wrong. Use it to find the weak spots, then check the facts that matter (prices, laws, numbers) yourself.
